

Building Here Still Active—Two Business Houses to Open in Remodeled Quarters Saturday

LEMON HOUSE IS NEAR COMPLETION

Along with other building enterprises in the city came the erection of house No. 2 of the Upland Lemon Growers' Association, which has incorporated within it all the modern ideas used in successful preparation of the lemon for market.

The new house has a floor space of 150x186 in the main work room, while a wash room to the rear has 60x150, and the basement beneath spreads out under the entire building, giving a floor space there of 150x246, the basement having a capacity of 135 carloads of lemons.

As you will note by the accompanying views, the new house has the saw-tooth roof which gives a north light to the main work room and which when completed will have incorporated in it sweet rooms with a capacity of three cars a day.

Receiving Department: One of the most interesting features of the new house is the receiving department in which is incorporated the wash room with its two concrete wash tanks, said to be the latest in the modern ideas of fruit washing. From the fruit washers the lemons are sorted from a conveyor and as the boxes are filled another conveyor carries the boxes to the basement where they are stored until ready for packing.

The Main Floor: The construction of the new building was in charge of C. C. Burkholder, W. C. Cline and his men doing the hollow tile and concrete work. Although the floor space in the work room or main floor is 150x186, there is but one post supporting the roof, for steel girders were used as supports, the longest one being 104 feet. Two elevators have been installed in the building and within a few weeks the Pacific Electric will have its side tracks in, the Santa Fe's having already been installed.

Second Largest: The Upland Lemon Growers' Association can now boast of having the second largest lemon house in the world, there being one Lemonera, near Santa Paula, which is slightly larger.

The capacity of the combined houses, both the old and the new, is six cars a day and in order to maintain this output 400 people would be employed.

The officials of the Upland Lemon Growers' Association are L. R. Bradley, secretary and manager, who originated the plans for the new house and directed the work of erecting the building. The board of directors are C. E. Harwood, president; Wm. Rohrig, vice-president; F. C. Buffington, Geo. N. Hamilton, and Geo. G. Laidlaw.

MEHL HARDWARE SPRING OPENING

Some twenty years ago an Iowa farmer, through the urging of his brother, decided he would come to California, and from the decision of this Iowa farmer to come West, the Odd Fellows' building of Upland became a reality.

E. A. Bowen was the farmer, and through the urging of his brother, Will Bowen, a merchant of San Diego at that time, Mr. Bowen, accompanied by W. C. Reynolds, came to Upland to start a store. All that was needed was a building, for Upland at that time had very few business blocks.

The Odd Fellows' lodge wanted a lodge home and in order to supply both needs E. A. Bowen and the lodge entered into an agreement by which the largest building block in the city at that time was erected.

bers to such an extent that the lodge needed more room. Once more the needs of all parties concerned had to be supplied and so the Mehl Hardware and Odd Fellows entered into an agreement by which the building was enlarged some 200 sq. ft., and a new front placed on the lower floor.

The Mehl Hardware Company was originally organized by J. C. Mehl and E. C. Mehl, in 1906. A year later J. W. Mehl joined the company. In 1914 J. C. Mehl retired from the firm and Mehl Brothers with J. W. as president and E. C. as secretary-treasurer, formed the Mehl Hardware Company.

With the growth of the city their business grew extensively until their cramped quarters made it almost impossible to give patrons a desirable service. With the renewed and enlarged store the work is not only much easier for employees and proprietors as well, but the patrons enjoy trading more than ever before.

Not only does the new addition add 900 square feet to the floor of the main building but the installation of a balcony mezzanine floor takes care of department much better than if they were located on the main floor. The front, as can be seen in the pictures appearing herewith, is a most attractive one while the interior is a most decided improvement over the old order of things.

Tomorrow the Mehl Hardware Co. is to initiate the new building by holding a spring opening in the remodeled and greater Mehl Hardware, and J. W. and E. C. Mehl extend to the people of Upland and vicinity an invitation to visit the store any time during the day or evening, as they will have some special features which will be of interest and will take especial pleasure in showing you the new store.

Chaffey Concert Tonight

The S. R. O. sign will be hung out early tonight at the concert by the Chaffey Department of Music. Director S. Earle Blakeslee promises an evening of great enjoyment. A hundred voices will take part in the songs and special numbers.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs will appear in separate numbers, and there will be a wealth of solos, duos, and quartets.

This Chaffey concert comes as the ninth number of the season's concert course. The entertainments this season have been much the best that have ever been offered at Chaffey. The Chaffey concert will prove of the same high standard as the other numbers.

Since practically the entire house was sold for the entire season there are but a few seats selling for tonight. The program begins at 8:15 and the doors open at 7:30.

same line of business here for a period of twenty-six years

In 1895 F. H. Manker launched Upland's first decorating and painting business and conducted it until the year 1901 when in the little building which was attached to the south wall of what was then the Sikes Livery Stable, located where the Monroe Garage now stands, C. M. Sikes joined Mr. Manker and they formed the Sikes-Manker Company.

Throughout the years that followed these men labored on and during that time Sikes-Manker Company established the reputation of doing their work thoroughly and well. Today the firm is known as Manker & Benson, C. V. Benson having purchased the interest of Mr. Sikes last June, and the good work is being carried on as in former years.

With the growth of their business the past few months Manker & Benson have found that it is not only necessary for them to establish a store in Ontario to care for their many customers in that territory, but to improve conditions in the Upland store as well.

To that end, a new front, as will be seen in the accompanying group of pictures, has just been completed while the interior has been finished in oyster gray with mullberry draperies, combining to make a most artistic effect and a most inviting place of business.

On Saturday Manker & Benson will be the "home" to speak, for on that day will be the official opening at the old location, on Ninth street, but with an entire change both as to exterior and interior.

Special features for the day will be a display of wall paper showing all the latest styles and colorings as well as a few patterns of genuine Zuber & Strands.

Country Publisher President of the United States

Warren G. Harding, country newspaper publisher, is in the White House—President of the United States. May he become the greatest of American Presidents.

Certainly this newspaper pledges its earnest effort to help him to that end. He faces perplexing problems both at home and abroad, but none so bewildering that it cannot be solved by the application of correct reasoning and honesty of purpose. We have an abiding faith in the sound thought of the American people, and we rejoice because President Harding, as a publisher, need not be taught the value of wholesome contact with his fellow men and women.

If he take counsel with the nation he is pledged to serve, the great voice will not lead him astray. In the days to come should we offer facts in criticism of his policies it will come because we fear our President may err as a result of silence.

Our wish is to be helpful, to put at the disposal of the President the best of our thought always in the interest of the people to whose service the life of this good man is dedicated. The President of the United States does not represent the Republican party, the Democratic party or any other party. He represents America, and we stand for that with face uplifted, with pen in hand and unafraid.

ON TIME SEVEN TIMES AROUND THE GLOBE

In traversing a total of 182,219 miles (or more than seven times around the globe), none of the five Santa Fe transcontinental trains, Chicago to California, was even a minute late during the last two weeks—which is regarded as a fine record for long-distance railroading. The California Limited and the San Francisco Limited, which arrived at terminals exactly on time during that period, with only one slight exception, the Santa Fe's other three daily trains to California also arrived on the dot.

From February 5 to March 3, inclusive, all through Santa Fe trains reached destination on time, and the average for the entire month of February was a most creditable one.

OBJECTS TO BOYS BEING IN CO. JAIL

Criticism of the presence in the county jail of three boys has been made by M. K. Williams, in a communication to the Redlands Facts.

Sheriff W. A. Shay announced Tuesday that three cells in the county jail had been officially designated as a portion of the detention home by the juvenile court, as the result of the crowded conditions at the detention home and the fact that boys cannot be restrained there if they desire to run away. Under this court order the juvenile authorities have the right to take minors to the county jail.

The cells, however, are removed from all other prisoners and the charge of Mr. Williams that "for companions they have criminals, dirt, darkness" is not correct, said the sheriff. There is no way for them to come in contact with criminals who are in cells removed from the tier which the court has designated as a portion of the detention home.

There are rats in the jail, admit the county authorities, like in every other jail and public building in the state.

As soon as the new detention home, plans for which are now being checked over by Miss Mabel Weed, representing the State Board of Charities and Corrections, is constructed, the necessity of confining boys in the "detention home annex" at the county jail will be eliminated, for the new home will be equipped with facilities to confine youths who might desire to escape.

Miss Weed said she was checking over the details of the operation of the detention home during the past year and a half.

"I find that the attitude of the state board and the county juvenile authorities is not very far apart," she said. "While the state board is willing that dependent children should be taken to a detention home in an emergency until another home is found for them, we are not in favor of approving the construction of a building of such size that the tendency would be to give dependent children a place of refuge where delinquent children are confined."

The state board's contention is that the proposed plans for the detention home call for a larger building than necessary merely for delinquent children pending disposition of their cases by the juvenile court. The board of supervisors agrees with the contention of the state board, Miss Weed has been informed.

HEALER TO ANSWER TO SUPERIOR COURT

The remarkable declaration that a cancer on his face was cured entirely by the divine power of Mrs. Elizabeth Farrow was made on the witness stand Tuesday by W. H. Parsons of San Bernardino in the preliminary examination of the widely known healer charged by the state board of medical examiners with practicing a method of healing without a certificate from the state authorities.

Mrs. Farrow was held to answer to the superior court by Justice Edward Wall, who announced that he agreed with the bitter attack of Attorney Charles L. Allison on the law that made the woman liable for prosecution, but that it was his duty to enforce the law, regardless of what it requires. "If Christ were to return to earth and seek to practice healing in the state of California he would be violating the law," said the court, "for He laid on hands."

Mrs. Farrow had admitted on the stand that when it was necessary she used her hands in the treatment.

Influence of God

In her testimony Mrs. Farrow related that she cured by the influence of God. She outlined that the moment a patient entered her office that she began to pray and that she then was instructed by God as to the proper treatment. She said that in many cases she cured without the aid of her hands, as in the case of Mr. Parsons who said that three days after he received the divine treatment his face cancer entirely disappeared.

The law exempts persons who cure by divine influence or prayer, and Attorney Allison urged the dismissal of the case on this ground. Judge Wall, however, ruled that Mrs. Farrow had used her hands and was therefore subject to trial before a jury for violation of the law.

W. B. Stewart and Mrs. Mary E. Stewart, of Upland, related how Mrs. Farrow had cured them of serious ailments. She had used her hands in treating a bone disease for Mr. Stewart.

The justice court was crowded with friends of Mrs. Farrow, anxious and willing to testify for her, but under the law it makes no difference whether a person is cured, the offense is for the practicing of the method of healing.

Last Showing Tonight of Brewster's Millions

Patrons of the Colonial Theatre were all very punctual in their appearance last night, for within a few moments after opening the show house it was filled to capacity.

The main attraction last night was Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle in that famous play, "Brewster's Millions," and it proved far ahead of the old time stage successes, for every feature of the play had been worked out. The last showing is tonight.

Saturday Night: Saturday night Frank Mayo appears in "Tiger True." The leading figure in "Tiger True" is a young millionaire who is noted as a wild animal hunter. The plot of the story starts when he is on his way to visit a famous gunsmith to obtain a special kind of big game rifle.

It's a great story and sportsmen will enjoy it immensely, for hunting big game is one of many features.

Sunday Night: Sunday night Gladys Walton appears in "Poor Girl, Rich Girl."

Nora McShane lived in a tenement in Fish Alley. Beatrice Vanderfleet lived in a mansion on the Park. One was a daring little alley-cat—the other was a silky-smooth pet Angora. One loved her "Muggsy"—the other her Reginald—yet they were pals. There! we've got 'em started and it wouldn't be fair to tell any more—but—

Monday Night: Monday night Charles Ray is to appear at the Colonial in "Back of the Man." There is one thing decidedly different about this play. It's always been customary to have the principals fall in love and close up with osculatory manifestations in the moonlight, but the final of this story is different.

WHAT HE MISSES

"And how are you getting along?" we asked the ex-bartender.

"Fine," he replied. "I'm making more money than ever. I'm clerk in a hat store."

"And you like it?"

"Yes, it's all right, but somehow or other when I sell a hat to a man it disappoints me not to hear him say: 'Have one yourself.'"—Detroit Free Press.

2ND AVE. OPENING AN IMPORTANT STEP

"Did you say that Upland is the Foothill boulevard?" "Why, I have been on that road a great many times but I never knew just where to find Upland." Such statements need not be made soon if the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce are successful, for the council has been asked to and have started proceedings to open Second avenue through to Twelfth street. This is one of the most important forward steps to be taken now for the improvement of Upland. This work was started several years ago but through misinformation as to the probable cost, the work was halted by a protest.

Regarding the cost of doing this the committee from the Chamber of Commerce have obtained the following information:

1. The amount that the assessment district has to pay is the amount the commissioners, appointed to assess the damages, figure the actual land is worth.
2. The cost of building the sidewalks, curbs and putting in the roadway is paid by the property owner facing on the street for that one block.
3. The proposed assessment district includes approximately all the property lying between A street on the south, half way between 12th and 13th streets on the north, Campus avenue on the east and Euclid avenue on the west, with the exception of the northeast section which was assessed for the opening of Fifth avenue some time ago.
4. The exact cost can not be given because the commissioners have the final judgment. However, the amount can be very closely estimated and F. C. Froehde, city engineer, has very kindly prepared the following statement:

Upland Chamber of Commerce, Upland, California.
Gentlemen:—

In reply to your request through Mr. O. E. Atwood that I give you my ideas of what the cost of opening 2nd avenue from 11th street to 12th street, I wish to submit the following:

2nd avenue business district A street to C street—69 22-foot lots at $25 per lot.....$1725.00
2nd avenue residence district—C street to 11th street, 74 50-foot lots at $25 per lot.....$1850.00
3rd avenue (A street to 11th street), 108 50-foot lots at $18 per lot.....$1944.00
1st avenue (A street to 11th street), 105 50-foot lots at $15 per lot.....$1575.00
Euclid Ave., (A street to 11th street), 52 50-foot lots at $10 per lot.....$520.00
Lots 515 and 516 Ontario Colony Lands, at $250 per lot.....$500.00

In the remaining part of the district bounded on the north by 10th street, on the south by A street, on the east by Campus avenue, and on the west by Third avenue, but not including frontage on east side of Third avenue, there are approximately 155 50-foot lots to be assessed. You will note that the assessments above amount to $1099.00. Figuring that the total amount to be raised by assessment, necessary to pay the costs and damages, is $9600, the remaining district comprising 155 lots will be assessed at the average rate of $6 per 50-foot lot, making the assessments on Campus avenue about $5 per lot.

You will also note that the district between Euclid avenue on the west, Third avenue on the East, A street on the south and a line midway between 12th and 13th on the north, pay all of the assessment with the exception of about $1000 which is spread over district I previously mentioned.

I think Third avenue assessments should be a little more than First avenue assessments, for this reason: Third avenue's nearest outlet to 12th street at the present time is via Euclid avenue, 1075 feet west, when Second avenue is opened her outlet will be 316 feet west or 762 feet nearer.

First avenue's nearest outlet to 12th street at the present time is via Euclid avenue, 395 feet west, when Second avenue is opened her outlet will be 296 feet east or 9 feet nearer.

Second avenue's total assessments on the basis I have figured amount to $3575 which is a little more than one-third of total assessment. If we include the $500 assessed to the 20 acres above 12th street it will bring the total to $4075 which is almost one-half the total assessment.

Yours respectfully,
FRED C. FROEHDE,
City Engineer.

FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1921

A NEW EXECUTIVE AND A NEW STAFF

The United States now has a new executive and a new executive staff. The new executive, President Warren G. Harding, was sworn in on Friday of this week, as the retiring chief, Mr. Wilson, became a private citizen. The executive staff, officially called the President's cabinet, Mr. Harding has nominated and but the formal confirmation of the Senate is required. Actually, both executive and staff have already begun most satisfactorily to function.

Warren G. Harding was inaugurated as the twenty-ninth President of the republic at noon Friday, the 4th of March. Accompanying the formality, the whole vast executive machinery of the government passed from Democratic to Republican control. As little display and ceremony as possible marked the occasion and while of pomp and circumstance there was none, of dignity and seriousness and impressiveness there was much. No elaborate inaugural parade, no official inaugural ball, no reviewing of long lines of troops this time. Only the serious business of starting a new administration of national affairs, the actual first step toward the attainment of a state of national normalcy.

The Bible on which the President took his oath was the same as that used by President Washington in 1789 and was furnished by St. John's Lodge, F and A. M., of New York. It is 174 years old.

The Bible has been in the possession of St. John's Lodge for about 135 years, and was printed in England early in the eighteenth century. It is the King James Version.

Simple as the ceremonies were, they marked one of the greatest political turnovers in the history of the American government. Not only were Mr. Harding and his running mate, Calvin Coolidge, elected President and Vice-President by the greatest popular majority in our history, but the Republican majorities in the Senate and House, which resulted from the Congress elections in the autumn of 1918, have been augmented to a point of overwhelming preponderance. The Democrats received a blow from which they can not hope soon to recover.

Not only has the new President to face the enormous task of laying out a program which will meet the pressing needs of the country at home and place its relations with foreign nations on a stable basis, but he must at once undertake the tremendous task of selecting for office in the new administration thousands of men who will carry out these new policies. Appointments to every branch of the government service must be made. Not the least important will be the naming of forty-seven ambassadors and ministers to foreign countries.

It is commonly understood, of course, that government jobs are divided into four general classes—those filled by the President with senatorial approval; those filled by the President or one of the executive officials without senatorial approval; those within the civil service and those carried on the rolls because of special fitness for the work to which they are assigned but without regard for the civil service, for example, certain groups of chemists and special experts and charwomen and laborers. In all there are in the government service, according to the last official register, approximately 770,000 men and women.

The jobs which Mr. Harding will have to fill, numbering about 25,000, are the most important in the government service. They include appointments to be justices of the Supreme Court of the United States; the members of the cabinet; the members of the Interstate Commerce and other commissions and bureaus; to the posts of ambassador and minister to various foreign countries and the like.

While President Harding has a monumental task ahead of him, so have the members of his cabinet big duties awaiting their attention. Not many people, perhaps, bother to acquaint themselves with the scope of the work of the ten different departments, which are separate from the independent government agencies, some thirty-five in number. Aside from the weekly or semi-weekly meetings they have with the President, the different cabinet officers have a multiplicity of duties, details of which possess a relationship and a complexity not, perhaps, to be fully comprehended from such a brief survey as is herein practicable.

With attention to the routine alone, this summary of departmental tasks is given:

Department of State, in charge of the Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, who ranks first in the cabinet, conducts, under the direction of the President, the negotiations of whatever character between the United States and all foreign countries; maintains in foreign countries a corps of diplomatic officers and consular agents; issues passports; publishes the laws and resolutions of Congress and proclaims amendments to the Constitution; medium of correspondence between the President and the chief executives of the different states.

Treasury Department, in charge of Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, charged with the management of the national finances; collects the revenue, such as tariff levies, income and other federal taxes; makes disbursement of public funds in accordance with the appropriations by Congress; submits the annual estimates of income and expenditures to Congress; maintains all public buildings; in charge of the coast guard and public health service.

War Department, under Secretary of War Weeks, is in charge of all matters of national defense and sea coast fortifications as they relate to the army; is in charge of all questions referring to the support, transportation and maintenance of the army; supervises river and harbor improvements; plans and locates all bridges over navigable waters; operates certain transportation facilities on the island, canal and coastwise waterways.

Navy Department, under Secretary Denby, in charge of the construction, manning, armament, equipment and employment of the vessels of war flying the flag of the United States; this includes all the war vessels of the American navy, the aircraft, auxiliaries, etc.; enlisted and officer personnel; in charge of the United States marine corps and its activities.

Department of Justice, under Attorney General Daugherty, represents the United States government in all legal matters; gives advice and opinions when required by the President or the executive departments; conducts prosecutions against violators of the federal criminal and civil laws; maintains the bureaus of investigation for the collection of information regarding law violation; supervises federal prisons.

Postoffice Department, under Mr. Hayes, the Postmaster General, supervises the federal postal service; in complete charge of the receipt and delivery of the mails; negotiates the mail treaties by which foreign mail delivery is accomplished; contracts for transportation of the mails; investigates mail fraud and postoffice and other robberies relating to the mails; sells stamps, money orders and attends to all matters of postal finance.

Department of the Interior, under the Secretary of the Interior, Senator Fall, is charged with the supervision of public business relating to patents for inventions, pensions and bounty lands, the public lands and surveys, the Indians, education, the geological survey, the reclamation service, the bureau of mines, the national parks, the Capitol building and grounds and the distribution of government appropriations for agricultural and mechanical colleges.

Department of Agriculture, under Secretary Wallace, is charged with promoting agriculture in its broadest sense in all parts of the United States and the territorial possessions; includes the United States Weather Bureau and its complete forecasting service; administers the national forests; in charge of the pure food and drugs through the Bureau of Chemistry; studies and reports improved methods for agricultural activity and marketing.

Department of Commerce, under the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover, promotes the commerce of the United States in its mining, manufacturing, shipping, fishery and transportation interests; maintains the lighthouse service, takes the census, prepares and distributes statistical information relating to foreign and domestic commerce, supervises and prescribes aids for the protection of life at sea, maintains the standard of weights and measurements.

Department of Labor, under Secretary Davis, fosters and promotes the welfare of the wage earners in the United States, seeks to improve their working conditions, holds the power to act as mediator in labor disputes, collects and publishes statistics relating to the condition of labor and its products, supervises the immigration of aliens, directs the administration of the naturalization laws, makes studies and reports for the improvement of child life and welfare of children.

From apparently reliable sources there has come the word this week that President Harding plans an actual combination of the War and Navy departments, and that the combination of the two departments under one head will take place as soon as the details can be outlined and the inter-relationship logically defined. Mr. Weeks, as Secretary of War, and Mr. Denby, as Secretary of the Navy, are said to have accepted their cabinet appointments with this understanding of President Harding's expectations. The combination of the two departments would be known as the Department of National Defense, which would consist of three branches—army, navy and air service—with a Secretary of National Defense in general charge and an under secretary heading each of the branches.

Fact is, it's a great inheritance of hard problems which the whole Republican administration has received from the eight years' reign of Wilsonian Democracy—problems confronting President Harding, his cabinet, the Republican Senate and the Republican House—but the Republican victory in the last election was so great as to create this auspicious circumstance: Democratic representation is too weak to lift any monkey wrenches, to say nothing of throwing them into the government machinery once it has been reconstructed.

LATEST HAPPENINGS IN ETIWANDA

After six weeks of intense suffering Mr. George G. Dooley passed into peace Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Donnelly. With Mrs. Dooley he came to Etiwanda early in November to spend the winter. He had wintered here once before and had made many friends who to a less extent share the grief of Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly. Mr. Dooley was a fine Christian gentleman whose personality was felt by all with whom he associated. He lived such a life that one would always feel inclined to point him out as an example to the young and his influence will live for many years to come both here and in his home town of Downs, Ill. Mrs. Dooley and son, Dr. Wayne Dooley, left for the East Sunday with the body where two other sons and a daughter, Mrs. I. D. Taubeneck, met them later in the week. We always feel that it is to be regretted that in our highly civilized life it is not customary to give several pages of write-up to a man of this sort or to the life like that of Mrs. J. H. Scott, which closed a few weeks ago, rather than to give the space and the time to some one who had best be speedily forgotten.

Mrs. Florence Fisher and Mrs. C. C. Brownless were hostesses Thursday afternoon to the members of the Ladies' Aid Society which met for the regular monthly meeting. Cake and tea for the ladies and candy for the children proved to be very popular refreshments. In the hour given to business several committees reported, the first quarterly installment on the pastor's salary was voted paid and arrangements were made for the annual mite box opening and for a tamale supper. Mrs. George Frost and Mrs. George E. Utman will have the supper in charge and will probably have it while the missionary committee is going about looking for a speaker for the other event. On April 6th and 7th the annual district missionary meeting will be held at Whittier. No delegates were selected but later on when it is found out who can go the president will choose the representative members of the Etiwanda society. Mrs. Mary Troyer who is kept always at home with Rev. Troyer's invalid mother, asked to be excused for the present from her committee work. Mrs. Fred Koch will take her place for the time.

The school at Rialto has invited the pupils of the Etiwanda upper grades to participate with them in a track meet at the Rialto school on the afternoon of March 18th. Having accepted the invitation the pupils of our school have been arranged in groups with group leaders and practice has begun by having the groups always in competition in the different events. Captains of the groups are Crester Frost, Joshua Spray, Virgil Wattenberger, Roberta Henderson, Marjorie Frost and Dorothy Smith. The friendly rivalry among the pupils is making them do some very earnest practice work. Several of the parents are planning to go to Rialto on Friday afternoon of next week to attend the field day there. Those who have extra room in their machines should report to Mrs. Rena B. Francis, so that she may be able to arrange transportation for all of the pupils.

Friday evening, March 18th, has been chosen by the Colton Concert Company for their annual concert at Etiwanda. For several years these young people have given us a concert during the winter months, the excellence of which has made it one of the most popular of Etiwanda's annual events. A very nominal charge for admission will be made by the Parent Teacher Association, who has charge of local arrangements, in order to pay for the use of Cypress Hall, where the concert will be given, and to defray the expenses of transportation for the concert company.

Mr. Clarence Stephens of Upland was honor guest at a birthday dinner Sunday at the home of Mrs. Mamie Cour. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Stephens and little son were invited but unable to be present. "All the electric lights were 'off' Sunday evening in Etiwanda so that the two Christian Endeavor societies met with a kerosene lamp apiece to read by. It reminded one of the early days all right. The intermediates, who meet downstairs, sang "Let the Lower Light Be Burning," with great vim, but nothing came of it.

At "Open Forum" Sunday evening the topic was Looking Backward and Forward. Accomplishments of the last eight years were discussed and the work ahead of the present was spoken of in several short talks at the joint meeting of both societies.

Mrs. Rosetta Rupe expects her daughter, Mrs. Campbell, here from Seattle in a few days, for a visit. Mrs. Rupe has just returned from a trip to Maricopa and a few days with a daughter in Los Angeles. She is particularly interested in the new President of the United States as her deceased husband's mother was a sister to President Harding's father. At a recent meeting of the directors of the O. K. Exchange district, the Cucamonga Citrus Fruit Growers Association became the sole owners and shippers of the well-known and popular Quail brand on oranges, this particular piece of luck falling to them against spirited bidding for the brand by several other O. K. associations, but the fact that the Cucamonga exchange was the originator of the Quail brand entitled them to first consideration and the brand fell to them. The Upland exchange, being large shippers of lemons, secured the exclusive right to the Quail brand on lemons. The Geyser, also an old brand of the association, is now the exclusive brand of the Cucamonga exchange for lemons. The Bear brand of the Cucamonga exchange will hereafter be used exclusively by the Ontario exchange. At this meeting it was decided to discontinue the use of a general brand in the O. K. district, such as the Quail, which has been used largely on f. o. b. orders and each packing house will now pack under their own individual brand. Our local exchange falling heir to the well-advertised and favorably known Quail brand on oranges and the Upland house on lemons should reap all the benefits accruing from such advertising and popularity. The exclusive use of the Quail brand on oranges also offers a splendid opportunity in any future exhibits at the National Orange Show to feature prominently the beautiful California quail with its numerous progeny as the center of attraction and representing the ultra-choice orange of the Cucamonga-Alta Loma district. This indeed should be good for at

FRANK C. BUFFINGTON ADDRESSES P. T. A. MEETING

The regular meeting of the Parent Teachers Association was held this month at the 18th street school, the idea being to give all members and friends an opportunity to inspect the new building.

Spring flowers were in the rooms in quantities and posters and drawings done by the children decorated the walls.

A splendid program had been prepared by the committee in charge, the disappointment of not having the first speaker, Mrs. Frederic Bush of Ontario, present, being to a great extent mitigated by the extremely interesting talks given by the other speakers of the afternoon, Mrs. F. H. Manker and Councilman Frank C. Buffington.

Mr. Buffington, who was one of the pupils in the early life of the school when it was called the San Antonio school, told of many events of that period, and while admitting that the vast improvements which have been made were undoubtedly necessary, said the children of his day were certainly not to be pitted for having lived then, and that the teachers of the old San Antonio school were excellent ones.

Mrs. Manker told of the experiences of the board of trustees, and spoke of several of the people connected with the "pioneer days." What she considered a very remarkable fact was that at one time there was actually $500 left in the treasury, a financial event that has not happened during the later days.

The present faculty of the 18th street school spoke on the present day affairs, Miss Stewart and Miss George giving statistics and records of happenings, and Mrs. F. F. Allen telling of the work done in her special room.

Recitations by Florence Clewett, Lily Warren and Warren Fuller concluded the program, and the guests were then invited to see over the building and visit the rooms.

The pupils in Miss Stewart's grades won the prize for the biggest attendance of parents and friends, and a lovely cake feast will be given to them on the Friday before the Easter vacation.

The next meeting will take place on Tuesday, April 12th, the location to be decided later.

DANCE AT UPLAND TAVERN

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Jacobson, of Chicago, who are spending several months at the Tavern, were hosts last Tuesday night at a dancing party to a number of friends who spent a most enjoyable evening.

The big dining room was decorated with red roses and ferns, and a fine orchestra, composed of a piano, violin, and mandolin, gave the best of music. At the end of the evening a supper was served at small tables, to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Steve Allee, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Bronson, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Dimmons, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Everett, Mrs. Church, Mr. and Mrs. Thrall, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Walburg, Mrs. Kate Martin, Miss Palomares, Miss Josie Schrow, Dr. McMullin, Lou Meisky, Charles H. Scheu, D. Mrs. Miles Hamley is hostess this afternoon to the members of the Dial Club, at her Tenth street home. The meetings of this club are devoted to fancy work, and are always very much enjoyed by every guest.

The members enjoying Mrs. Hamley's hospitality this afternoon are Mrs. E. W. Henry of Upland, Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. J. M. Halfhill, Mrs. William Fiske, Mrs. Harper, Mrs. C. F. Traphagen, Mrs. F. H. Smith, Mrs. P. A. Sandison, Mrs. W. W. Cushing, Mrs. I. H. Laws, Mrs. A. D. Howard of Ontario.

MISS MORSE AND A. H. PEHL TO WED ON TUESDAY

A pretty outdoor wedding is planned for next Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Morse of Alta Loma when their daughter, Ruth Alice, becomes the bride of Arthur Hales Pehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Pehl, of this city.

The ceremony, which will be very informal, will take place at 6 o'clock, amid relatives and intimate friends of both families.

It is learned, with regret that the young couple will make their future home in Wyoming, but the good wishes of the community will follow them to their new home, with hopes for frequent visits to their families and friends in Upland.

SIXTH DISTRICT MEETING

The annual meeting of the Sixth District of the California Library Association, which includes all the southern counties, will meet at Santa Ana all day Saturday in the Christian Church. Those who will attend from Upland are Mrs. Edith S. Troeller and Mrs. F. H. Manker, Miss Edith Hanson, from Ontario, Miss K. Monroe and Mrs. Neales from Chaffey Library, and Mrs. F. W. Clapp, Miss Smith from the Portland Public Library will accompany them.

The St. Patrick's Day idea was carried out by the hostess in the social part of the entertainment, and was very much enjoyed by the guests. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. R. Farmer on Washington boulevard, with Mrs. Alvin Tolle and Mrs. Farmer heads of the program committee.

Red geraniums were used in decoration, and the place cards represented the Easter idea in their flowery daintiness.

Mrs. Chaffee was assisted in serving by her little granddaughter, Elizabeth Clark, who made a very efficient helper, and looked very charming in her endeavor to do everything "just right."

Covers were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Dale Clark, Miss Virginia Clark, Elizabeth Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnson, Mrs. Kate Martin of Long Beach, Charles Byer, J. H. Herman and Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Chaffee.

Interesting to all motorcyclists is the notice that Otto Walker, riding a Harley-Davidson motorcycle, in the motorcycle races held at Fresno on Feb. 22, Washington's Birthday, attained the highest rate of speed of any motorcycle rider, which was 107.78 miles per hour, on the new circular board track speedway, winning first place in the race. At the motorcycle races held the same day at Beverly Hills the highest record was 106.

A. Christensen of West 14th street had an expensive birthday greeting, on his last anniversary, which he celebrated on March 3rd. His wife and son who are in Chicago called him on long distance phone to wish him many happy returns of the day. Mr. Christensen says he heard their voices as plainly as if they were talking over the local phone, absolutely no hitch, and the conversation was carried on very distinctly. The call cost in the neighborhood of $13.75, but the birthday man says it was well worth it.

G. C. Kingman of Rialto, member of the San Bernardino county traffic officers' squad, has just purchased, through the agency of the John Palmer Cyclopedia of this city, a new 74 cubic inch piston displacement Harley-Davidson motorcycle. It is the largest and fastest motorcycle manufactured by the Harley-Davidson Motor Company.

Mrs. R. R. Harrington is spending a few days in Los Angeles, the guest of friends.

J. M. Lewis, colored, was taken from a Santa Fe train here in the month of February and later given 30 days in the county jail for evading railroad fare. Yesterday Mr. Lewis returned to town, said he liked this town and is looking for a job.

John Baldwin, peddler of sheet music, rapped at the door of the residence of C. E. Grier yesterday afternoon, and as no one answered the door as promptly as was desired by Mr. Baldwin, he opened the door and entered. About that time Mrs. Grier heard some unusual noise and finding the old man in the house ordered him to get out. Officers took the old man in hand and gave him until the next train to leave town. He was a Civil War veteran and evidently of a harmless sort. He gave as an excuse for entering the Grier home that he wanted to see if there was a piano in the house.

Do you know choice cuts of meat? If not, ask me; I do. I can tell you what to serve for that important dinner. Guy Clark, Hayman & Rogers' Grocery. 8611

Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. William Atchley and their house guest Miss Standale, motored to Pomona last Wednesday and attended ladies' night at the Elks' Club house. The evening passed very pleasantly in cards and dancing.

Atwood, and James Goodban are the committee in charge of arrangements regarding the coming of the Ellison and White Chautauqua, which is scheduled for Upland April 30th to May 4th, under the auspices of the Upland Post, No. 73, American Legion. The financial returns will be used for the new club house, recently started by the local post here. The company will pitch its tents on the northwest corner of Third avenue and Ninth street, immediately east of the postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hart of Helena, Mont., Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Bliss of Los Angeles, Mrs. Louise Walker of Pasadena and Mrs. R. T. Morton of Edendale were all guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Boyd at their Sixth avenue home last Sunday. Mrs. Morton is a sister of Mr. Boyd's and has lately come to California from Houston, Texas, with her husband. They have purchased property in Edendale, and will be permanent residents of this state.

Mrs. A. W. Burt is looking forward to a visit from her brother, Dr. Gerald Birney Smith, of Chicago University, who left yesterday for Berkeley where he is scheduled to give a course of lectures at the theological school at the university. Dr. Smith plans to come to Upland before returning to Chicago, for a brief visit with his sister and mother, Mrs. Harriet Smith, of San Antonio Heights.

Mrs. Rae Colborn leaves next Monday evening for Sacramento where she goes as a delegate to the State Convention of the Order of Royal Neighbors. Mrs. Colborn is the Oracle of the Upland camp. She expects to be in the north a week, and will visit friends after her official duties are ended.

Among those registering at the Upland Tavern this week are Mrs. Rosalie Irving of New York City, C. J. Swenson, Portland, Oregon; E. Hopper, Santa Ana; J. E. Strickland, Oceanside, Mrs. Morgan, Long Beach.

All members of the Order of the Eastern Star are again reminded of the big meeting at Ontario Masonic Hall this evening at 7:30. Upland, Ontario and Chino Chapters have charge of the work for the evening and all those looking for a good time will not be disappointed.

FREDERICK WARDE PRESENTS JULIUS CAESAR

“I want you to imagine this platform and piano do not exist. You are standing in the streets of Rome.” These were the instructions which Frederick Warde gave to the assembly on Monday in his presentation of Julius Caesar. In answer to his request, the students of Chaffey became the impulsive Roman mob, swayed by the eloquence of Brutus, and then Mark Antony.

Julius Caesar led the triumphal procession, which marched through the streets of Rome and across the Chaffey stage. On his head he wore a wreath (by the permission of the Roman Senate) in order to conceal his bald head. There was the body of Caesar with his three and twenty wounds, in the orchestra pit. The manuscript or will of Julius Caesar was the pocket handkerchief of Frederick Warde, which the Roman mob compelled Antony to read by Antony's own compulsion.

As the minute hand of the clock on the nearby wall approached 12, the Roman mob, the wounded Caesar and the murdered Brutus faded away. Frederick Warde, again a twentieth century being, said to the students, “I know when that hand reaches 12 you will want to eat.” Hearty applause. “Shakespeare never wrote a speech as popular as that,” ended Frederick Warde.

HISTORY OF J. C. DRAMATICS

Chaffey Junior College ever since its inauguration has excelled in dramatics. The first year, 1916-17, the Amazons was presented under the direction of Miss Margaret Swan and was a real success. The next year C. J. C. distinguished itself in Mrs. Temple's Telegram and it brought a great moral lesson before a large audience. The proceeds went to the Ontario and Upland chapters of the Red Cross and to the Junior Red Cross chapter at Chaffey. During the war and the resulting call for soldiers and workmen, the attendance of the school year ending in June, 1919, was materially lowered. Due to this and the influenza quarantine, a heavy play was not attempted. However, “Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil,” a novel one-act play, made up in quality what it lacked in quantity. This play was a milestone in C. J. C. dramatic history, for it was Miss Fredendall's first production on a Chaffey stage. The year 1919-20 marked another great advance for C. J. C. dramatics. This year witnessed the biggest and best production in dramatics ever presented at Chaffey. Disraeli was the first play. It was the best ever produced here. George Hamilton made the place he now holds in the hall of fame in this play. The second big drama was “The Passing of the Third Floor Back,” with a message for all and with Herbert Woodruff playing the lead this time. Both of these plays were coached by Miss Fredendall, whose energy and inspiration have brought C. J. C. dramatics to their present high standard.

BEWARE! THE IDES OF MARCH

Next Tuesday morning a pay assembly is to be given by the J. C. to raise money to pay the expenses of the team to San Diego. This assembly will be different from any you have ever seen at Chaffey. It will be interesting and will have action from start to finish.

There will be excitement and blood, great gobs of it. The first thing on the program will be a boxing bout between Battling Bob Campbell and Bill Cushing. This should be a hum-dinger for both have an evil reputation, are hard sluggers and waste no soft feelings between themselves. Next Roughneck Edwards and Skinny Davison, the human bean pole, will lock arms in a rough and tumble wrestling match. When the debris is cleared away Powder Puff Claypool will box Cream Puff Hammers, which will be followed by another wrestling number, Corory Cordes vs. Four-Minute Rucker.

After long and earnest consideration the august committee from whose noble brows this blood-thirsty menu originated, have finally consented to allow the world renowned Tuffy Woods to stage his much anticipated round of fisticuffs with Kid Lyle. If by this time the gory floor is not too slippery the final feature of the program will be run off, a wrestling bout. Mister Orton (Blocky) Woodhead from Chino, “Where Everything Grows,” and the San Joaquin Valley demon by name Ralph Graves will each endeavor to pull the other into a shoe string and tie the bow-knot in each other. No one wishes them any bad luck, but there will be no objections if they both succeed. Come one, come all; You don't know what you will miss. It is only fifteen cents and it sends the track team to San Diego.

TENNIS

The tennis ball is rolling on to success. Nine men and twelve women have already signed up. Among the men are some of last year's sparks, Hubbell, Dugan. But they will face real troubles when they meet Pettis, Hippard and the two Blacks and Graves. The contest for the women are all arranged with the schedule beginning March 17th. Those who are signed up are: Misses Bost, Whistler, Anedros, McLaren, Widmer, Boulton, Koster, Dickens, West, McDowell, G. Smith and L. Smith.

CHAFFEY CONCERT

J. C. CONFERENCE

The J. C. Conference meet will be held at San Diego Saturday, April 2. Boost your track team. Help raise the money to send to San Diego. Two or three fellows can't win a meet. Everybody out and show San Diego (who think they won't get any competition from C. J. C.) that they have another think coming. C. J. C. wants to repeat last year's performance, nay, even better it. To do so, every one will have to get in and work. There are only two more weeks of school to get into condition. You can't do it all in one or two days. Do you want to go to San Diego? If you do, you'll have to get out and work.

The men are out to try and make the team. Every one can't go, so an elimination meet will be held to pick the ones for the San Diego trip. Those who are out for track are: Harper, Lucas, Campbell, Davison, Edwards, Watenpugh, Cole, Cushing, Claypool, Bost, Mitchell, Graves, Mortimer, Woodhead, Hubbell, Black, Walsworth, Weeks, Clauson and Taylor.

WHAT THE AUDIENCE DIDN'T SEE
By a Member of the Cast.
“Most of you saw and heard all the funny things that occurred in front of the scenes during the presentation of Grumpy. Now you are going to be let in on some of the behind-the-scenes dope. When Ernest and the maid Susan were tying the silken hair around the camella they found it took much longer than they had supposed. So, while you were “out there” listening, they did some clever extemporaneous comedy and you did not know the difference. And that bird! It was guaranteed not to sing. We took it back next morning and told them it was no good. The beastly thing started to sing just as Fritz was playing his crookedest. We were stung on another property, too. Friday night the bowl that held the roses didn't break. Behind the scenes we were breathlessly awaiting the crash and it didn't come at all.

MANUFACTURES IN CITY OF LOS ANGELES IN 1919

A preliminary statement of the general results of the census of manufactures for the city of Los Angeles was issued recently by Director Sam L. Rogers of the Bureau of Census, Department of Commerce. It consists of a summary comparing the figures for 1914 and 1919, by totals, prepared under the direction of Mr. Eugene F. Hartley, chief statistician for manufactures.

The census of manufactures, 1919, like that of 1914, excluded the hand trades, the building trades, and the neighborhood industries, and took account only of establishments conducted under the factory system. In this census also, as in that for 1914, statistics were not included for establishments having products for the census year valued at less than $500, except that report were taken for establishments idle during a portion of the census year, or which began operations during that year, and whose products for such reason were valued at less than $500.

Percentage of Increase

The summary shows consistent increase at the census of 1919, as compared with that for 1914. In the order of their importance from a percentage standpoint the increases for the several items rank as follows: Wages, 202.2 per cent; materials, 171 per cent; value of products, 170 per cent; value added by manufacture, 168.7 per cent; salaries, 115.8 per cent; wage earners, 98.5 per cent; salaried employees, 591 per cent; capital, 56.2 per cent; primary horsepower, 46.7 per cent; proprietors and firm members, 42.6 per cent; and number of establishments, 33 per cent.

The capital invested, as reported in 1919, shows a gain of $57,180,000, or 56.2 per cent, over that in 1914. The average capital per establishment was approximately $62,000 in 1919 and $53,000 in 1914.

The cost of materials used in 1919 shows an increase over that for 1914 of $100,735,000, or 171 per cent. The average cost of materials per establishment in 1919 was approximately $63,000, and in 1914 $31,000, including the cost of fuel, mill supplies and rent of power and heat.

Value of Products

The value of products in 1919 shows an increase over that in 1914 of $175,869,000, or 170 per cent. The average per establishment in 1919 was approximately $110,000 and in 1914 $54,000.

Value Added by Manufacture

The value added by manufacture represents the difference between the cost of materials used and the value of the products manufactured from them. The value added by manufacture in 1919 shows an increase over that in 1914 of $75,119,000, or 168.7 per cent. The value added by manufacture in 1919 formed 42.8 per cent of the total value of products and in 1914 43 per cent.

Under sundries come amusements, charity, doctor bills, vacation expenses, transportation, repairs, taxes, insurance, interest and finally furniture.

It is probable that furniture doesn't represent more than one or two per cent of these total yearly expenditures; therefore it would be poor economy to try to save a few cents on trashy chairs, etc., that would break down and only have to be replaced in a short while.

The Magnificent Ambersons

By Booth Tarkington

But the great change was in the citizenry itself. What was left of the patrician old-stock generation that had fought the Civil war, and subsequently controlled politics, had become venerable and was little heeded. What happened to Boston and to Broadway happened in degree to the Midland city; the old stock became less and less typical, and of the grown people who called the place home, less than a third had been born in it.

A new spirit of citizenship had already sharply defined itself. It was idealistic, and its ideals were expressed in the new kind of young men in business downtown. They were optimists—optimists to the point of belligerence—the motto being "Boost! Don't Knock!" And they were hustlers, believing in hustling and in honesty because both paid. They loved their city and worked for it with a plutonic energy which was always ardently vocal. They were viciously governed, but they sometimes went so far as to struggle for better government on account of the helpful effect of good government on the price of real estate and "betterment" generally; the politicians could not go too far with them, and knew it. The idealists planned and strove and shouted that their city should become a better, better, and better city—and what they meant, when they used the word "better," was "more prosperous," and the core of their idealism was this: "The more prosperous my beloved city, the more prosperous beloved I!"

These were bad times for Amberson addition. This quarter, already old, lay within a mile of the center of the town, but business moved in other directions; and the Addition's share of prosperity was only the smoke and dirt, with the bank credit left out. The owners of the original big houses sold them, or rented them to boarding-house keepers, and the tenants of the multitude of small houses moved "farther out" (where the smoke was thinner) or into apartment houses, which were built by dozens now. Cheaper tenants took their places, and the rents were lower and lower, and the houses shabbier and shabbier—for all these shabby houses, burning soft coal, did their best to help in the destruction of their own value. Distances had ceased to matter.

The five new houses, built so closely where had been the fine lawn of the Amberson mansion, did not look new. When they were a year old they looked as old as they would ever look; and two of them were vacant, having never been rented, for the Major's mistake about apartment houses had been a disastrous one. "He guessed wrong," George Amberson said. "He guessed wrong at just the wrong time! People were crazy for apartments—too bad he couldn't have seen it in time. Poor man! he digs away at his ledgers but every night—he still refuses to let the Mansion be torn up for wiring, you know. But he had one painful satisfaction this spring: he got his taxes lowered."

Amberson laughed ruefully, and Fanny Minifer asked how the Major could have managed such an economy. They were sitting upon the veranda at Isabel's one evening during the third summer of the absence of their nephew and his mother; and the conversation had turned toward Amberson finances.

"I said it was a 'painful satisfaction,' Fanny," he explained. "The property has gone down in value, and they assessed it lower than they did fifteen years ago."

"But farther out—"

"Oh, yes, 'farther out!' Prices are 'magnificent' farther out, and farther in, too! We just happen to be the wrong spot, that's all. Not that I don't think something could be done if father would let me have a hand; but he won't. He can't, I suppose I ought to say. He's always done his own figuring," he says; and it's his lifelong habit to keep his affairs, and even his books, to himself, and just hand us out the money. Heaven knows he's done enough of that!"

"There seem to be so many ways of making money nowadays," Fanny said thoughtfully. "Every day I hear of a new fortune some person has got hold of, one way or another—nearly always it's somebody you never have heard of. It doesn't seem all to be in just making motor cars; I hear there's a great deal in manufacturing these things that motor cars use—new inventions particularly. I met dear old Frank Bronson the other day, and he told me—"

"Oh, yes, even dear old Frank's got the fever," Amberson laughed. "He's as wild as any of them. He told me about this invention he's gone into, too. 'Millions in it!' Some new electric headlight better than anything yet—every car in America can't help but have 'em,' and all that. He's putting half his life into it, and the fact is he almost talked me into getting father to 'finance me' enough for me to go into it. Poor father! he's financed me before! I suppose he would again if I had the heart to ask him. At any rate I've been thinking it over."

"So have I," Fanny admitted. "He seemed to be certain it would pay twenty-five per cent the first year, and enormously more after that; and I'm only getting four on my little principal. People are making such enormous fortunes out of everything to do with motorcars, it does seem as if—"

She paused. "Well, I told him I'd think it over seriously."

"We may turn out to be partners and millionaires then," Amberson laughed. "I thought I'd ask Eugene's advice."

"I wish you would," said Fanny. "He probably knows exactly how much profit there would be in this. Eugene's advice was to 'go slow.' He thought electric lights for automobiles were 'coming—some day,' but probably not until certain difficulties could be overcome. Altogether he was discouraging, but by this time his friends 'had the fever' as thoroughly as old Frank Bronson himself had it; for they had been with Bronson to see the light working beautifully in a machine shop. 'Perfect!' Fanny cried. 'And if it worked in the shop it's bound to work any place else, isn't it?'"

Eugene would not agree it was "bound to"—yet, being pressed, was driven to admit that "it might," and retiring from what was developing into an oratorical contest, repeated a warning about not "putting too much into it."

George Amberson also laid stress on caution later, though the Major had "financed him" again, and he was "going in." "You must be careful to leave yourself a margin of safety," Fanny said. "You must be careful to leave yourself enough to fall back on, in case anything should go wrong."

Fanny deceived him. In the impossible event of "anything going wrong" she would have enough left to "live on," she declared, and laughed excitedly, for she was having the best time that had come to her since Wilbur's death. Like so many women for whom money has always been provided without their understanding how, she was prepared to be a thorough and irresponsible plunger.

Amberson, in his wearier way, shared her excitement, and in the winter, when the exploiting company had been formed, and he brought Fanny her importantly engraved shares of stock, he reverted to his prediction of possibilities, made when they first spoke of the new light.

"We seem to be partners, all right," he laughed. "Now let's go ahead and be millionaires before Isabel and young George come home."

"When they come home," she echoed sorrowfully—and it was a phrase which found an evasive echo in Isabel's letters. In these letters Isabel was always planning pleasant things that she and Fanny and the Major and George and "brother Eugene" would do—when she and her son came home. "They'll find things pretty changed, I'm afraid," Fanny said. "If they ever do come home!"

Amberson went over the next summer and joined his sister and nephew in Paris, where they were living. "Isabel does want to come home," he told Fanny gravely on the day of his return in October. "She's wanted to for a long while—and she ought to come while she can stand the journey—"

And he amplified this statement, leaving Fanny looking startled and solemn when Lucy came by to drive him out to dinner at the new house Eugene had just completed.

He was loud in praise of the house after Eugene arrived, and gave them no account of his journey until they had retired from the dinner table to Eugene's library, a gray and shadowy room, where their coffee was brought. Then, equipped with a cigar, which seemed to occupy his attention, Amberson spoke in a casual tone of his sister and her son.

"I found Isabel as well as usual," he said. "Only I'm afraid 'as usual' isn't particularly well. Sydney and Amelia had been up to Paris in the spring, but she hadn't seen them. Somebody told her they were there, it seems. They'd left Florence and were living in Rome; Amelia's become a Catholic and is said to give great sums to charity and to go about with the gentry in consequence, but Sydney's ailing and lives in a wheel chair most of the time. It struck me Isabel ought to be doing the same thing."

He paused, bestowing minute care upon the removal of the little band from his cigar, and as he seemed to have concluded his narrative Eugene spoke out of the shadow beyond a heavily shaded lamp: "What do you mean by that?" he asked quietly.

"Oh, she's cheerful enough," said Amberson, still not looking at either his young hostess or her father. "At least," he said, "she manages to seem so. I'm afraid she hasn't been really well for several years. Of course she makes nothing of it, but it seemed rather serious to me when I noticed she had to stop and rest twice to get up one short flight of stairs in their two-floor apartment. I told her I thought she ought to make George let her come home."

"Let her?" Eugene repeated in a low voice. "Does she want to?"

"She doesn't urge it. George seems to like the life there—in his grand, gloomy and peculiar way; and of course she'll never change about being proud of him and all that—he's quite a swell. But in spite of anything, she said, rather than because, I know she does indeed want to come. She'd like to be with father, of course; and I think she's well, she's interested one day that she wouldn't get to see him again. At the time I thought she referred to his age and feebleness, but on the boat coming home I remembered the little look of wistfulness, yet of resignation, with which she said it, and it struck me all at once that I'd been mistaken; I saw she was really thinking of her own state of health."

"I see," Eugene said, his voice even lower than it had been before. "And you say he won't let her come home?"

Amberson laughed, but still continued to be interested in his cigar. "Oh, I don't think he uses force! He's very gentle with her. I doubt if the subject is mentioned between them, and yet—and yet, knowing my interesting nephew as you do, wouldn't you think that was about the way to put it?"

"Knowing him as I do—yes," said Eugene slowly. "Yes, I should think that was about the way to put it."

A murmur out of the shadows beyond him—a faint sound, musical and feminine, yet expressive of a notable intensity—seemed to indicate that Lucy was of the same opinion.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Let her" was correct; but the time came—and it came in the spring of the next year—when it was no longer a question of George's letting his mother come home. He had to bring her, and to bring her quickly if she was to see her father again; and Amberson had been right: her danger of never seeing him again lay not in the Major's feebleness of heart but in her own. As it was George, telegraphed his uncle to have a wheeled chair at the station, for the journey had been disastrous, and to this hybrid vehicle, placed close to the car platform, her son carried her in his arms when she arrived. She was unable to speak, but patted her brother's and Fanny's hands and looked "very sweet," Fanny found the desperate courage to tell her. She was lifted from the chair into a carriage, and seemed a little stronger as they drove home; for once she took her hand from George's and waved it feebly toward the carriage window.

"Changed," she whispered. "So changed."

"You mean the town," Amberson said. "You mean the old place is changed, don't you, dear?"

"She smiled and moved her lips: 'Yes.'"

"I'll change to a happier place, old dear," he said, "now that you're back in it, and going to get well again."

But she only looked at him wistfully, her eyes a little fatigued.

When the carriage stopped her son carried her into the house and up the stairs to her own room, where a nurse was waiting; and he came out a moment later, as the doctor went in. At the end of the hall a stricken group was clustered. Amberson and Fanny and the Major, George, deathly pale and speechless, took his grandfather's hand, but the old gentleman did not seem to notice his action.

Upland Merchants

HAVE GOT TO SELL IN 1921

YOU BET!

For a long time they have been mere order takers. They filled up their stores, and the people, being reckless and extravagant, bought at random. The times have changed. Deflation is here with both brogans. The people are now buying only what they need and caching the rest of their money in the bank or in the old stocking.

Which means that the retail merchant must become at once a real salesman.

He has to get back of it whether he wants to or not. The business won't come to him as it has largely in recent years; he must Go Get It!

If he is a good business man he realizes right up to the hilt that the best advertisements are his best salesmen; that his advertisements must be attractive, attention-getting and so well presented in a paper of thorough circulation in the Upland and vicinity district that they will drag the people to his store.

That is why The News has equipped itself with an illustrated advertising service. We stand ready at all times with a real service.

Let us know what you want in the way of an ad. Our service and The News circulation will do the rest.

If you ask for the best fertilizer you may get it, but if you ask for Bradley's Standard Fertilizer you are sure to get it.

Imitation is said to be a sly form of flattery. It may be flattering to the manufacturers of the best fertilizer to have it imitated; but it certainly is not flattering to the grower who uses the "Near-best" brand, when he finds he has only got an imitation of a BRADLEY'S crop.

Everybody knows by this time, where to come for BRADLEY'S FERTILIZER, and when you get ready to use it—get it there.

It will cost you less than other fertilizers, rated just as good. MAKE SURE OF THE CROP BY GETTING THE FERTILIZER THAT PAYS—IT'S BRADLEY'S.

The Reward of Persistent Thrift

Persistent Thrift is not difficult—simply adopt a definite plan of saving and arrange your mode of living to meet it.

One of the best methods to accomplish this is to make an allowance for each item of necessary expense, confining your expenditures within this limit.

JUST RETURNED FROM CHILE

Jack R. Lee, son of Mrs. M. J. Lee, of Campus avenue, has just returned from Chile. He is in the fleet reserve, and left with the Pacific Fleet, on the U. S. S. Idaho, on the recent cruise to South America.

From San Pedro the fleet of seven battleships sailed to Panama, taking eleven days for the trip. They were joined there by the Atlantic Fleet with the same number of battleships, and with forty-two destroyers, the voyage was continued to Callao, Peru, where the Atlantic ships stayed, the Pacific Fleet going on to Chile, where they anchored in Valparaiso harbor.

Mr. Lee says that Valparaiso is an enterprising city with a fine street car system, board of health, water and electric light companies, railroads, and all the modern conveniences that any city in the United States has. The social life is represented in the many golf and jockey clubs, fine hotels, theatres, parks, and museums, all of which are quite up to date.

The fleet received a royal welcome from the people of Chile, and the President, Arturo Alessandri, asked that men from the American fleet be sent to Santiago, the capital, to parade before the citizens of that city. Each battleship in the fleet sent a company of blue jackets, and a detachment of marines to parade, leaving on a special train from Valparaiso, which is some one hundred miles from the capital.

The railroad is controlled by the government and men from all the ships were transported free of charge to Santiago in order that they might have the chance of seeing one of the most beautiful cities in South America. A week was spent in Chile, and then the Pacific Fleet steamed north joining their sister ships at Callao, and traveling together as far as Panama, where the Atlantic Fleet left for New York, the Idaho and the other six returning to San Pedro.

SUCCESSFUL

"Were you trying to catch that train, sir?" he asked pompously. The panting would-be passenger eyed him balefully for a second before he blurted out: "Oh, no, I merely wanted to chase it out the station."—The Arklight.

KIPP WILL DIRECT FARM BUREAU CAMPAIGN

Max A. Kipp of Ontario was Wednesday named field secretary of the County Farm Bureau and will begin work at once, having as his first task the completion of the membership campaign, the close of which has been extended four weeks. The total secured has now reached 1489 and the organization of several new centers will also be handled by Mr. Kipp.

The appointment was made at the regular meeting of the board of directors held in the Farm Bureau of office Wednesday afternoon.

The bureau went on record as opposed to the passage of the proposed range cattle law, being presented in the state legislature by Assemblyman Jones and Prendergast and Senator Lyman King. The action followed considerable discussion and argument by Attorney Byron Waters, who declared the law as it now stands is one that will probably not pass the legislature and one which will very likely be declared unconstitutional. The act asks all land owners holding tracts of which 40 per cent or more is cultivated, to fence their land keeping cattle out, and comes following a petition by farmers asking restrictions against grazing. The bill now has the backing of cattle interests.

The proposed purchase of a university farm school site in San Fernando Valley was also opposed by the organization on the ground that the returns would be too small to warrant expenditure of $300,000. The school, as planned, would be almost a duplicate of the Riverside Farm School.

Appropriation of $72,000 in addition to the present state budget for further extending the work of the farm bureau work in the state was voted on favorably, however.

Coy After Pests

J. P. Coy, county horticultural commissioner, was appointed to take charge of pest control in the county, and $400 was voted to be expended in the purchase of necessary equipment with which to combat pests. He will receive cooperation and aid of farm bureau members.

Attempts of Pasadena and other cities to secure water rights in water flows on the north side of the mountains were discussed and a committee named to investigate the matter. Dix VanDyck of the Barstow Farm Center presented the plea from that locality, explaining the situation. He will act as chairman of the committee.

B. W. Shaper, secretary of the bureau, and W. W. Coke of the public utilities board, were named delegates to the meeting of the state federation at Berkeley, March 18 and 19.

R. D. Pease, vice-president of the state organization, will also attend. Extensive service to the citrus growers was also discussed and plans made to hasten the organization of the proposed centers at Redlands and Upland, following out plans made some time ago. The work will probably include establishment of other centers at localities where interest warrants their organization, five or six being planned. A new member will be appointed to the farm bureau staff shortly who will serve the citrus grower exclusively. He will come through the state extension service. New farm centers to be organized soon are Redlands, Del Rosa, Etiwanda and Mt. Vernon which will serve farmers west of San Bernardino.

Department reports and those of committee chairmen were heard during the business and the making up and disposition of budgets was discussed, committees being named to handle the issues.

Boy Scout-Y.M.C.A. Campaign in Ontario

Ontario has taken up their lap in the relay race for the campaign funds for the Chaffey Community Y. M. C. A. and Boy Scout organization with enthusiasm. Last night the Boy Scouts dined in the social hall at Bethel Congregational Church to receive their parting instructions.

The boys are going to the homes today and Saturday to offer an investment that will return much to the boys and girls of Ontario, and that will make for a better city a few years hence.

Upland Has Passed $2000

Since Saturday a few subscriptions have been turned in by the Upland Boy Scouts. There are, however, quite a number of citizens who could not be found by the Scouts on Saturday, and the boys hope to bring the quota to the $2700 mark this week. If citizens interested will telephone O. E. Atwood or C. E. Moser a Scout will call with the best investment of the year. Those who wish to make final payments on bonds already purchased may do so to Atwood or Moser at any time.

Italian Lady Will Talk to Chino Farm Bureau

On Saturday, March 12, at 7:30 p. m., a special meeting of the Chino Farm Bureau will be held at Casa Colina, George Junior Republic, at which Mrs. Olive Afresti, official representative of the Agricultural Commission of Italy, will speak on Italian agricultural conditions and general agricultural conditions, in Europe, as affecting American farmers.

Professor L. J. Flesher, head of the Division of Agricultural Engineering, University of California, will give a special talk on tractors and their relationship to the local farm conditions.

All members and their friends are cordially invited to be present at this meeting. It promises to be one of the most interesting meetings of the year and a large attendance is expected.

The regular business meeting of the Farm Bureau will be held at the Chino High School on Thursday, March 17, at 7:30 p. m.

MRS. ALLEN TO CONTINUE IN SPECIAL SCHOOL WORK

Following the recent announcement of the engagement of Mrs. F. F. Allen to William D. Gladwyn, came considerable anxiety among those interested in the work of the Special Room, at 18th street school (which was organized last year by Mrs. Allen and since conducted by her), as to the continuation of the work next year.

It will be of great interest and pleasure to those who know of the splendid work being done in the Special Room to learn that Mrs. Allen will continue in her present position, and be in charge of the children next year.

While the exact date has not been settled for the wedding, it is understood that it will occur some time in June, during school vacation.

ELECTION OF COUNTY SCHOOL TRUSTEES MARCH 25

Notice of election of county school trustees, which will be held March 25, were sent out from the county superintendent's office yesterday. The elections will be in all districts with the exception of San Bernardino, each to elect one trustee. There are 68 grammar districts and four union high school districts, the latter group, with the exception of Cotton, which is newly organized, electing two trustees each. Grammar school districts have three members on their boards of trustees, each of whom serve three years, while the high school board is composed of five, serving a similar period.

SAN BERNARDINO TAXI DRIVER ROBBED AT VERDEMONT

Sam C. Taylor, rent car driver and former downtown labor leader, San Bernardino, was Wednesday night beaten almost to unconsciousness, robbed, bound and thrown on a railroad track near Verdemont. Taylor could see lights of a train in the distance.

With frantic haste, the injured man pulled himself from the track, loosened the rope that bound his arms and staggered to the road for help.

Confession that they beat, robbed and bound Taylor Wednesday night, was made by Roy Sanford, 23 years old, and Albert G. Wilson, 19 years old, deserters from the Marine Corps, when they were brought in to the county jail yesterday from Yucaipa, where they were captured by Constable A. B. Ward and his deputy, Otto Sweetser.

The two prisoners will be charged with highway robbery. Taylor said the two men had hired him to drive them to the Glen Helen Ranch in Cajon Pass. Near Verdemont one of them suddenly hit him a smashing blow on the head with a bottle. He fought with them but could not reach a revolver he carried in a door pocket of the car. He finally jumped from the machine.

TEMPERAMENTAL TRAVEL

"Conductor!" shouted a passenger on the back-country train. That was my station, sir! Why didn't you stop?"

"We don't stop there any longer," said the conductor. "You see, the engineer is mad with the station agent!"—Youth's Companion.
